

From the Desk of the Director...

“Education breeds confidence.
Confidence breeds hope.
Hope breeds peace.”
- Confucius

Believing in the stated quote and following it with sincerity, we at APTECH, strive to provide opportunities to our students that will ignite in them the spirit of 'HOPE.'

Students with high hopes often achieve greater success. We are proud of the fact that we can and we are instilling hope through education in our students here.

The unprecedented times that we all have survived have left each one of us with learning. Each one of us can narrate stories of our trivial and crucial experiences that have inspired and led to new learning gateways. Imbibing the hardships beyond proportion and seeing hope being crushed, society however has been compelled to adopt new ways and accept yet another revolution in becoming self-reliant.

Women being the backbone of our society, we are happy to explore ways and means to facilitate them with hands-on learning through various activities conducted here. The learning by doing approach is rehearsed as a culture at our institute.

While most of the people believe in 'Save a Girlchild and Educate her', we feel privileged to be the torchbearers for bringing wholeness to the statement through our practice of 'Save a Girlchild; Educate her and Empower the Girls by making them self-reliant.'

To enlighten young girls by sparking hope in them can not be accomplished by being mere vocals. We need to mark the path and establish stepping stones for them to reach their aspirations.

We earnestly wish that 'Women Empowerment' does not halt as a mere dream that many tried to live. But, being the leading pioneers of having achieved it, we urge the readers to come forward and support the mission as we continue to make this dream come true.

Teacher Talks

Mr. Sujit Joshi

Hope is a desire accompanied by expectation of or belief in fulfillment

Hopeful people are "like the little engine that could, [because] they keep telling themselves, "I think I can, I think I can". Such positive thinking bears fruit when based on a realistic sense of optimism, not on a naive "false hope".

For some hope comes into its own when crisis looms, opening us to new creative possibilities and some say with great need comes an unusually wide range of ideas, as well as such positive emotions as happiness and joy, courage, and empowerment, drawn from four different areas of one's self: from a cognitive, psychological, social, or physical perspective.

As a specialist in positive psychology, Snyder studied how hope and forgiveness can impact several aspects of life such as health, work, education, and personal meaning. He postulated that three main things make up hopeful thinking.

- Goals – Approaching life in a goal-oriented way.
- Pathways – Finding different ways to achieve your goals.
- Agency – Believing that you can instigate change and achieve these goals.

In other words, hope was defined as the perceived capability to derive pathways to desired goals and motivate oneself.
